BIOGRAPHY
Being shy is different in my view as Headteacher said it is never being shy but being the shrewd, challenging and supporting staff and being on time in the meeting can be the best a great team of members and support staff of the school and I think the children are very lucky to be at such a happy, thriving school.

EDUCATION
I have done my BA in English Literature subject in 2021 from Harvard University, Cambridge, MA and my GPA was 3.5, after that I did MA in English Literature subject in 2020 from University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, PA with a GPA of 3.5. I enjoyed my study and got lots of experience during my course.

EXPERIENCE
I worked at Florida School as an English Teacher in 2020 the same year I finished my MA. It was a challenge to handle the school but I got a great job. I worked in an office and joined in a club working as a volunteer. Currently, I am doing the job here.

SKILLS
I have good confidence and motivational abilities. I speak to my students in many ways. And having a good knowledge of technology. I believe, I am one of the most important things to communicate with students and take to class students. That is why I can communicate better and have ability to engage with thousands of students at once.

REFERENCE
Reference is important plus for what you did above my skills and experience. Management Lessons from Mahabharat

The Live Session hosted by Vartika Mishra on August 16, 2020 on Instagram was a huge success with over 536 viewers and enormous responses by the students. Mr. Vishal Bharadwaj, an Entrepreneur, Data Scientist at Bristlecone, Director and Chief Editor at NFMA and a TEDx Speaker at TEDX GLAU spoke about management skills we can learn from the Mahabharat . He started with the importance of women in an organisation sharing various examples of Draupadi and Gandhari. Further he moved on to the lessons of team building in an organisation relating to Kauravas and Pandavas and connecting it with the benefit of quality over quantity in a team.
